Life aboard the LV50

The crews sleeping quarters were at the front of the ship. The quarters were cramped and the ships bow made it even smaller. Access to the crews quarters was steep and difficult to get to. The crew men had to access the sleeping quarters by climbing down a ladder. The ladders steps were steep and difficult to climb. The crews baggage and provisions had to be stowed in this area too. They had to sleep in hammocks. The hammocks ropes were suspended from the ceiling.
